To Whom It May Concern:

This recommendation letter is being written on behalf of Reginald Terry. I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Terry upon the start of my employment to the Men's Achievement Center. As an office assistant I have observed Mr. Terry and found him to be an extremely dependable person and incredibly hard worker. As a non-traditional member of the Centennial Scholars Program (CSP) here at North Carolina Central University, he engages and provides wisdom to the younger members through sharing his life experiences. Having the opportunity to listen to Mr. Terry's story has shown me that he is strong and resilient person. He has overcome so many obstacles to finally arrive at the point to where he is ready to graduate from NCCU.

Besides having a great and inspiring story Mr. Terry has worked very hard here at NCCU. Through the Men's Achievement Center and the Centennial Scholars program, he has accumulated 288 community service hours even though none were required of him. He has volunteered with many of the events and programs that other organizations and the Men's Achievement Center have hosted and does so because he enjoys serving. Mr. Terry embodies the spirit of "Truth and Service" here at NCCU it is because of this that I nominate Mr. Reginald Terry for the North Carolina Central University Student Service Impact Award.

Respectfully,
